THE KING AT THE ST. LEGER YESTERDAY—FAVOURITE DEFEATED.

The King witnessed the surprising race for the St. Leger Stakes yesterday, in which Challacombe, ridden by Otto Madden, beat the favourite. Polymelus ran second, and Cherry Lass was third. The odds were 6 to 4 on Cherry Lass and 20 to 1 against Challacombe. The photographs show—(1) Otto Madden, the winning jockey; (2) the King in the royal box; (3) Mornington Cannon on Polymelus; (4) H. Jones, who rode Cherry Lass; and (5) a crowd on the Doncaster course.

THE KING AT THE ST. LEGER.

His Majesty Sees Challacombe
Win the Last "Classic."

MACKINTOSH DAY.

Wet Weather, but Sensational
Racing at Doncaster.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

DONCASTER, Wednesday Night.—There have been many sensational contests for the St. Leger, but none more remarkable than to-day's, which was won by Mr. W. M. G. Singer's Challacombe, a horse which had hitherto gained distinction chiefly in mamer company.

The King was an interested spectator. His Majesty arrived with the house party from Rufford Abbey shortly after one o'clock. Rain had just commenced to fall heavily, and it was necessary en route to close the royal carriage, but the cheering crowds needed no discomfort, and gave the illustrious visitor a hearty north country welcome.

All Yorkshire and the neighbouring counties sent tens of thousands to the course, but unfortunately constant showers and leaden skies dulled the brilliancy of the festival. One saw in the boxes and on the balconies persons distinguished in sport and society, and there were not a few French visitors, who evidently had not lost hope of seeing the honours fall to a Gallic candidate, as M. Cuillault was running a pair in Magon and Ninay. The French owner declared to win with Ninay, and that filly carried his first colours. She was ridden by J. Rieff, who is well remembered in England because of his triumphs as a tiny lad some years ago.

OMINOUS REPORTS.

The secession of Val d'Or and Cicero, and the ominous reports current concerning Cherry Lass and Langibby, induced other owners to chance their luck, so altogether there were eight competitors, some of whom could scarcely win the most moderate of races. Supporters of Cherry Lass did not lose hope, albeit the filly had been seriously amiss.

The situation was perplexing, and that was the emphatic opinion of Lord Londonderry and Lord Dudley, as they discussed the matter in the paddock with Lord Crewe, whose representative Polymelus was expected in the circumstances to run creditably if not win outright.

Showers compelled the brilliant assemblage of ladies to seek under shelter or don waterproofs, so the costumes were eclipsed. The King watched the primaries and the parade, and counted the competitors, with evident keenness, from the front of the balcony. On the grand finale appeared Lord Savile, the Duke of Rosborough, and Lord Cadogan. From the adjoining stand Col'one' Hall Walker followed the fortunes of Cherry Lass, that handsome little filly appearing full of life, but, like Challacombe, was in blinkers—a badge suggestive of trouble.

CHERRY LASS FRACTION.

Cherry Lass remained favourite to the close, despite her vagaries at the post, vagaries in which Polymelus also joined. A loud shout from a thousand voices signalled the start, and men saw, with great concern, that the favourite dwelt for a moment as the barrier shot up on its rubber stays. But the trod had not gone far when Cherry Lass threaded her way alongside the French colt, Magon, and soon afterwards went in front of the lot. There was breathless excitement as the filly came, as leader, into the straight, and the question was whether she would stay.

Say she could not, and was in obvious trouble in the last three furlongs, where the horse of the best stamina, Challacombe, came through and won in a canter, despite the utmost exertions of the jockey on Polymelus. But the latter readily beat Cherry Lass, whose jockey, indeed, sympathetically eased her in the last hundred yards.

The race was run at a terrific pace, the mile and three-quarters being traversed by Challacombe in the record time of 3min. 5 2/5sec.

This was the sixth St. Leger witnessed by the King, and not since Doricles won the spoils for Mr. Leopold de Rothschild has a more unexpected victory been achieved.

MIMIC WAR RESUMED TO-DAY.

Cavalry training and manoeuvres in Berkshire were suspended yesterday by order of Sir John French, who deemed it prudent to give the horses a day's rest so that their condition for important work to-day should not be impaired as a consequence of the rough weather.

Two naval officers were seriously injured in a motor-car accident near Andover. One of the wheels broke, and the car overturned. The chauffeur escaped with a shaking.

HAVOC AT BAKU.

Houses Shelled by Artillery as a Punishment for Disorders.

TARTAR TREACHERY.

The situation at Baku may be summed up in two words—armed neutrality.

Latest dispatches, says Reuter, show that the feeling between the Armenians and Tartars is as bitter as ever, and only the energetic measures of the military prevent further outbreaks of fanaticism.

Houses from which rifle shots are fired are bombarded by the artillery, and, as an object lesson in punitive power of the military, three houses have been demolished.

General Svetloff has taken charge of the petroleum works at Balakhan, and although things are quieter in Baku, the situation is still dangerous.

Outside Baku, however, the Tartars are active. They are scouring the province of Elizabetpol with carts full of arms, which they are distributing among the villagers.

These weapons are evidently intended to be used against the Armenians, and although ostensibly pacific, the Tartars are holding secret meetings nightly.

PROVOKING REPRISALS.

In the Nukhy district the Armenians have vainly asked for troops to protect them. There is every indication that the militant Tartar agitation is spreading to the district of Zakataly, and that it will subsequently extend to the province of Daghestan, which is already in a state of ferment.

Thousands of people who have fled from Baku dare not return to the oil-fields for fear of massacre. Instances are reported where Tartar police agents entered Armenian houses and, after firing revolvers from the windows, wrongly accused the inmates of attacking the patrols, thereby provoking terrible reprisals.

Reports of atrocities by the Tartars continue to be received, and it is stated that during the fires at Baku Armenians were thrown alive into the flames. It is believed that three-fourths of the property of the naphtha companies have been destroyed. The immediate loss is now placed at £80,000.

The Warsaw police have discovered at the flat of the astronomer, M. Kowalewski, of the Government Astronomic Observatory, a store of revolvers, ammunition, and daggers. All the members of the astronomers' family have been arrested. Another large store of arms has been discovered at a chemist's flat in Sosnowa-street.

FRESH EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS.

Further Damage Caused in Italy and the People's Panic Increasing.

CSENZENA, Wednesday.—Three more severe earthquake shocks were felt here between eight o'clock last evening and two o'clock this morning. Fresh damage was done, and the panic among the people has increased.

King Victor Emmanuel left at a quarter past six this morning on another motor-car tour through the districts visited by the recent earthquake. The royal party covered a distance of seventy-five miles.—Reuter.

INNSBRUCK, Wednesday.—A severe earthquake shock was felt in the Arlberg district at half-past one o'clock this morning. The shock lasted from six to ten seconds, its direction being south to north.—Reuter.

OVERLAND TO AMERICA.

Colossal Railway Projected By French Engineers.

Now that peace has been signed, French engineers and capitalists have returned to their dream of a railway from Paris to New York, by way of Siberia and Alaska.

Midway between America and Asia lie the Diomede Islands, the Greater Diomede belonging to Russia and the Lesser Diomede to the United States.

The greatest length of tunnel would be only eighteen miles if a station were built at one of the Diomedes. The greatest depth of Behring Strait is 180ft., and the use of electric power under the sea would eliminate the question of space.

FLOODS AS BAD AS EARTHQUAKE.

LAHORE, Wednesday.—The damage done to buildings in Lahore city by the recent phenomenal rainfall almost equals the havoc of the earthquake, many houses being destroyed and hundreds of people made homeless.

Large tracts of country in the Punjab are under water.—Exchange.

SCOTTISH LADY GODIVA.

Pretty Teacher Walks Direct from Her Bath Into the Public Streets.

An unusual incident, in which the central figure was a pretty young lady school-teacher, took place yesterday at Portobello, near Edinburgh.

After eating a hearty dinner the lady unwisely decided to take a hot bath.

This she indulged in at the Corporation Sea Water Baths, and it is supposed the effect of doing so directly after a meal sent a rush of blood to her head and temporarily rendered her irresponsible.

Unobserved by the bath attendants, and with very little clothing, she crept out of the building, and it was some minutes before her sister, who accompanied her, discovered that she was gone, and raised the alarm.

In the meantime, the young lady crossed several streets, one being the chief thoroughfare of the town.

Then she turned into a country road, about a quarter of a mile from the baths, leading to her house. Here the chill air brought her to her senses, and in great distress, she crouched behind a wall. A man came to the rescue, and gave her his great-coat, and she afterwards got home safely.

BAND OF L. L. 13.

Postal Mistake Reveals Elaborate Scheme of Murder and Plunder.

An elaborate plan of plunder, to be effected by wholesale murder, has just been revealed at Antwerp (says a correspondent) through a trifling postal blunder.

Advertising as "L. S. 13, Poste Restante," a merchant called at the post office for his letters and received fifteen.

One of these filled him with horrified amazement. It contained details of a murder committed at Amiens, followed by a lament that the financial proceeds of the crime were so small.

Then followed a cold-blooded description of plans for murders in Paris, Antwerp, and other places, the whole letter pointing to the existence of a daring gang of murderers. It was then discovered that it was addressed to L. L. 13, but had been wrongly sorted.

The Antwerp police have arrested both the writer of the letter and the man for whom it was intended.

MYSTERY OF THE BALTIC.

Armed Crew Defy the Customs, Blow Up Their Ship, and Disappear.

The mystery surrounding the steamer which was blown up in the Gulf of Finland deepens.

The vessel was discovered by a Customs boat from Jacobstad, but when (says Reuter) the Customs officers boarded her they were confronted by an armed crew of twenty-two desperate men, who assumed a menacing air.

Their refusal to surrender, told the officers they were going to blow up the ship, and compelled them to retire.

Shortly after the Customs men had retired there were four explosions. They returned to find the steamer a wreck. The crew had evidently escaped in the lifeboat.

With regard to the rumour that the ship was the John Grafton, the late owners state that the vessel changed hands, and they had not heard of it since 1891.

The registered owner of the John Grafton, seen yesterday, told our interviewer he had no information to give.

MIDNIGHT TELEGRAMS.

President Loubet, at the invitation of King Carlos, will go to Portugal when he pays his visit to Madrid next month.

In the twenty-four hours ending at noon yesterday fifteen fresh cases of Asiatic cholera and four deaths were reported in Prussia.

Colonel Rhodes, brother of Cecil Rhodes, who has been seriously ill, continues, says a telegram received in London, to make good progress.

Prince Luwu of the Celebes having refused to comply with a Dutch ultimatum, troops captured his capital, Palopo, says Reuter, after a vigorous resistance.

Two boys, named Leonard Mitchell, aged twelve, and William Beven, ten, bathing in the River Lyd, Cornwall, were carried away by the strong current and drowned.

TO-DAY'S WEATHER.

Our special weather forecast for to-day is:—North-westerly breezes; fine generally; sunny in most parts; warm afternoon, very cool at night.

Lighting-up time: 7.16 p.m.

Sea passages will be smooth, with local fogs.

BARON KOMURA.

Great Diplomat's Return to Japan Postponed Through Typhoid.

STRIKING PERSONALITY.

Typhoid fever has attacked Baron Jutura Komura, the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs, and the leading Japanese plenipotentiary at the recent Peace Conference at Portsmouth, U.S.A.

His return to Japan has been indefinitely postponed. A Reuter's message for New York indicates that he is very ill, and his temperature stands at 102. His medical attendants have summoned Dr. Francis Delafield from Hot Springs, Virginia.

The news of his illness, coming so soon after the reported massacre of his family, which appeared in an Italian paper, gave rise to fear that he had taken poison as a result of the popular Japanese antagonism to the peace terms. That the doctors report his illness to be due to typhoid quite dispels this fear.

The stricken Minister is one of the cleverest diplomats of the day, and won a great reputation during the Chin-Japanese war when he was secretary of the Pekin Legation.

In appearance the Baron is very thin and short, with high cheekbones and a very pallid, faded aspect.

He does not belong to any one of the great feudal clans of Japan, but was born of a Samurai family. By sheer ability he worked his way up, and was the first Japanese student to receive a degree from Harvard University.

On leaving Harvard, Komura became chief of the Bureau of Translation in the Department of Foreign Affairs.

After that he performed such excellent service for his country in St. Petersburg, Washington, Pekin, and Korea that in 1902 he was created Baron.

"Komura was a diplomat before he went to school" is a common saying in Japan, and he has also, by his sharpness and swiftness of action, earned for himself the nickname of the "Rat Minister."

Japan, and in fact the whole world, will anxiously await news from the sick-room, where one of Japan's most distinguished sons lies stricken with so deadly a disease.

MOURNING JAPAN.

Men of the Mikasa Sacrificed by Their Devotion to Duty.

Fresh light is thrown upon the sinking of the Mikasa by a message received yesterday at the Japanese Legation, London.

The first official dispatch said that there had been no time for the crew, but it appears that the many lives lost were sacrificed by the devotion to duty for which the Japanese have become famous.

When the ship was discovered on the Mikasa men were sent from other warships in the harbour and also from the shore to assist in fighting the flames. Many of these perished with the crew when the fire reached the powder magazine.

The disaster has plunged Japan into mourning. But she is relieved by the fact that Togo is safe, and the ship, being in shallow water, may be raised.

ARRANGING THE ARMISTICE.

Rioting Continues in Japan, but Demonstrations Are Less Serious.

General Fukushima and General Oranovsky, the Japanese and Russian Armistice Commissioners, met yesterday at Sahotzu Station, north of Chantafu, says Reuter.

M. Witte, prior to sailing from New York on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Zweierte, on his return to Russia, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt thanking him, the Government, and the people of the United States for their cordial welcome and courtesy.

Meanwhile, says the Central News, the demonstrations in Japan against the peace treaty continue in the provinces, the demonstrators at Yokohama making an attack on the police. Troops were called out to restore order.

HUNTING DOWN "BLUEBEARD."

Trail of Slighted Sweethearts Leads Police from Manchester to Paris.

THOUSANDS BUY HIS BOOK.

Vigorous search is being made in England for the polygamist, "Witzoff," alias "Westoff," alias "Westen," alias "Schote," alias "Wistoff."

The police do not intend to charge him with the hundred and one bigamous marriages he contracted in America in order that he might obtain possession of the property of his "wives," but "Bluebeard" is said to have committed many acts of fraud in England, for which he is "wanted."

Residents of Dysart-street, Finsbury-square, are still positive that they identify "Witzoff" as the dentist "Westen" who practised in that street until last September and then disappeared.

Manchester people—among them Hettie Ferguson, who was engaged to him, and whose portrait appears on another page—continue to swear that the bigamist was living, as "Albert Wool Reader," at Strangeways, Manchester, until last Friday.

Now, it would seem, "Bluebeard" has flown to Paris. He is said to have been seen in the Strand on Friday evening, and to have taken the night boat for the Continent. Scotland Yard detectives, now in Paris, believe that they have discovered a clue.

Many Manchester Sweethearts.

Several girls who knew "Westen," the Dysart-street dentist, and others who state that they were courted by the man in Strangeways, positively identify the portraits of "Dr. De Laurence," the hypnotist, published in yesterday's Daily Mirror, as those of their joint sweetheart.

Hypnotism proved much more profitable to "Witzoff" than even bigamy did. By posing as a "Master Lama" and "Yoghee," and deluding English people with circulars praising his "Book of Magical Art," he obtained thousands of remittances of £3.

Once a likely victim received a communication from Witzoff's Chicago office he was never allowed a week's peace until he had paid an exorbitant price for this rubbishy book, which purported to initiate its readers into "sacred mysteries."

If it proved against these allegations, "De Laurence" would finally offer the volume for £2, and throw in with it "a handsome lithographed diploma" bearing the sacred and secret seal of the Temple of La Kama Moomtaj Lyumbha-nurjia, India," and giving the person power to become "a practitioner of medical psychology, instructor in occultism, or a public medium, clairvoyant, or adept in Hindu magic and Indian occultism."

Moved by "Thee" and "Thou."

Those who could not pay so much were asked to send "a small sum (one or two dollars) as an evidence of thy faith."

"They" and "thee" were used throughout the letters and pamphlets which "De Laurence" sent to the credulous.

"Now, my Brother, thou art a man in whose soul the great Occult and Spiritual Powers, as well as the Image of Divinity, sealed for Eternity," wrote "De Laurence" to one victim, "for I know thou art a man designed spiritually for the receiving of Magical Instructions in much higher and more contemplations than many sons of earth are capable of."

"Now, as thou art, my Brother, a man, who shall gain the Grand Seal of all Occult and Magical Wisdom, the true talisman of human happiness, and thou shalt accomplish many wonderful and strange things, for behold, nothing will be impossible to thee, as far as the Eminent Adepts and Master Lamas permit."

"Thou shouldst with all speed apply thine heart and soul to attain the Magical Knowledge and Eternal Wisdom, fully set forth in the 'Book of Magical Art,' and with all humility throw thy dependence on External Wisdom alone, the Author of all things that cannot die, for if ye be not able to remit the whole and entire amount of twelve dollars at once, it will be well for thee to send a small sum (one or two dollars) with all speed as a down payment (for if thou hast self-love and covetousness and art greedy thou wilt never thrive, for it will harm thee)."

Witzoff, then, was a man who defrauded men as well as women, and there can be no doubt that he has found thousands in this country readily duped by his preposterous claims.

"WAR AT ANY PRICE."

"I am a lover of peace," exclaimed a property owner at Willesden Police Court yesterday, "but when a man walks into an empty house belonging to me with all his furniture and family and won't pay any rent or leave, well, it must be war at any price." A summons was granted.

Directors of the Woolwich Arsenal Football Club have given permission to the local unemployed to collect money at matches on the club's ground.

KILLED BY AN EXPRESS.

Tragic Death of Two Men Before a Crowded Platform.

A melancholy accident, attended by tragic circumstances, occurred at Epsom Station on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway yesterday.

While crossing the line to the platform for the 10.56 train to London, Captain John Randall, of the West Surrey Regiment, and William Williams, a local postman, were cut to pieces by the Portsmouth express.

The tragic occurrence was witnessed by many people, for the platform was crowded with passengers waiting to travel to London.

Several of them were so unnerved that they were unable to undertake the journey.

The victims were evidently unaware of their danger until too late. Apparently they had thought that the line was clear because the train for London had just been signalled.

But the spectators saw the danger as the express thundered into the station, and they shouted frantically.

Captain Randall turned his head towards the platform whence the cries came, but the next moment he and his fellow-victim were instantly killed. Captain Randall was thirty-five years of age, and had not been long home from India.

LAST NIGHT'S NEW PLAY.

Mr. Gillette in "Clarice" at the Duke of York's Theatre.

"A pretty piece." That was the general verdict on "Clarice." Pretty scenery, particularly the Virginian homestead. Pretty sentiment. Pretty talk.

Mr. Gillette is a doctor in love with his ward. He has a rival in another doctor, who, to gain Clarice, declares that her guardian is consumptive. Upon this the guardian pretends to poison himself. The rivals find him apparently on the point of death. In a panic he confesses that he was only pretending about the consumption. Whereupon the guardian confesses that he was only pretending about the poison! So the guardian marries his ward after all.

Mr. Gillette makes the hero a fine fellow, and his American company act up to him well. They all play as if they meant it, and the piece does not seem so very unreal. But it is not like "Sherlock Holmes."

Amongst those who witnessed the performance were Sir Squire and Lady Bancroft, Sir A. Conan Doyle, and Miss Irene Vanbrugh.

LUCKY STREET FIGHT.

Combatants in Chance Affray Discover They Are Long-Lost Brothers.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Wednesday.—There was a remarkable reunion of two long-lost brothers in the Central Markets yesterday.

A young man was being bullied by one of the porters because he did not work quickly enough, when a ragged bystander took the young man's part and threatened the tyrant.

The two came to blows, and the porter was knocked down, whereupon the police arrested his aggressor.

At the station the prisoner gave his name as Jean Miller, on hearing which the porter became very excited.

"What was your mother's maiden name?" he asked. The prisoner stated the name, whereupon the porter folded him in his arms. "The man is my brother! I have been looking for him for twenty years!" he said, and declined to prosecute.

ELECTRIC TRAIN OFF THE RAILS.

One side of the driver's compartment was demolished, and the platform was torn up for several yards. The assistant engine-driver was slightly injured.

BURST SHELL WOUNDS TWO MEN.

Two men were seriously injured at Whale Island Gunnery School, Portsmouth, yesterday, during experimental works with a pom-pom.

A fuse was being extracted when a shell burst, wounding Petty Officer Boyd and Armourer's Mate, Jones.

PROMOTION BROUGHT DEATH.

Archibald Davis, a young Borstal man, has just died in hospital at Rochester from terrible injuries sustained at Wickham Cement Works.

For the first time he was given the responsible duty of putting a belt on a wheel, and as he was stepping back his heel caught in the cog-chain. He was drawn into the cog-wheel and his legs were crushed.

SUPPER WAITED FOR THIRTY YEARS.

A Wife Who Left After a Tiff and Did Not Return.

HOUSE NOW AS IT WAS.

There has just been put up on a house in Upper Cheyne-row, Chelsea, a tablet stating that Leigh Hunt once lived there.

Local tradition, however, has always held that the famous author, supposed to be the original of Dickens' Harold Skimpole, lived in a house a few doors away—a house which for many years has stood silent and shuttered, empty and desolate.

Long ago there lived in this house a husband and wife who did not always agree. One day they had a worse tiff than usual, and the wife flounced out of the house, declaring that her husband should never see her again.

He paid no attention to the threat. He said to himself: "She will come back all right at suppertime, and I will have a delicious little supper prepared as a peace-offering. We will make it up again, as we have often done before, and I will try never to quarrel with my dear one again."

Locked the House Up.

For the man was really devoted to his wife in spite of their disagreements.

So he had the supper made ready, and sat and waited for her return. The hours passed. Eight, nine. He grew anxious. Ten, eleven. He began to be seriously alarmed.

Twelve, one, two. He became frantic with grief and apprehension. Had some accident happened to her? Could she have meant what she said? All night he stayed up and waited. The morning light showed a haggard, miserable creature sitting with a heart as heavy as lead by the side of the unmade meal.

When it was clear to him that his wife had carried out her threat, he made up his mind what to do. He left the house exactly as it was, the supper still on the table, nothing moved or taken away. He sent away the servants. He locked the place up.

Then he took his sorrow to another habitation and dwelt there, a broken-hearted man.

To this day (according to Chelsea tradition) the house remains exactly as it was when he left it, a pathetic monument of a man's hasty temper and a woman's hardness of heart.

Chelsea will still call it "Leigh Hunt's house," in spite of the London County Council tablet a few doors away.

MAJOR AND LADY.

Grand Jury, on Recorder's Advice, Ignore Bill in Strange Perjury Charge.

The Old Bailey Grand Jury were charged yesterday by the Recorder concerning the "wilful perjury" presented by Major Aphorpe against Miss Ferrers, alleging perjury against her in a breach of promise action in which she was awarded heavy damages.

It was explained that Major Aphorpe had taken this course because the magistrate before whom the case first came had refused to commit.

As a matter of fact there was no evidence before the magistrate, and he (the Recorder) had been asked to postpone the case as a material witness could not attend.

He had refused to allow such a charge to hang over the head of the young woman for another month. Before a person brought an accusation against another he should be prepared with evidence to support it.

He advised the Grand Jury to ignore the bill, and this the Grand Jury did.

SERENE IN SPITE OF EVERYTHING.

Hanging suspended over railings in Lincoln's Inn yesterday, with its forefeet dangling into an area, as the result of taking flight and bolting, a cab-horse placidly nibbled the grass within its reach while men with ropes were making ready to extricate it.

IDENTIFIED BY A SHOE.

Part of the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Alice Pearce a year ago at Morecambe has been solved, a human leg having been picked up on the beach and the shoe on it identified as belonging to the missing girl.

RECOMMENDED TO MERCY.

Henry William Popple was sentenced to death yesterday at the Old Bailey for the murder of his two children at Walworth. The jury recommended him to mercy.

SISTER'S PATHETIC PLEA.

Piteous Appeal of Injured Woman for Brother Who Libelled Her.

There was a dramatic scene at the Old Bailey yesterday.

Henry Field, of Archel-road, West Kensington, was arraigned on a charge of libelling his sister, Mrs. Helen Tatton, a solicitor's wife of Hammersmith, by writing on a postcard, "Better sell a grave than be another man's mistress."

Some misunderstanding had arisen between the brother and sister over Field selling the grave at Brompton Cemetery, in which his wife was buried. Someone had sent him a newspaper cutting about a man selling a grave with relations in it, and he, thinking his sister had forwarded it, wrote the words complained of.

On being sentenced to six months' imprisonment he burst into tears.

At the same time the sister whom he had libelled forward in court, exclaiming in piteous tones: "Oh, please, sir, don't send him to prison. I am his sister. I don't want you to send him to prison."

In answer to the appeal sentence was postponed till the next sessions, on the understanding that if substantial sureties were forthcoming then he would be released.

"No. Certainly not. It is a gross case of libel," said the Recorder, in answer to an application for bail.

LONDON'S GUESTS.

How the L.C.C. Will Cement the Good Understanding with France.

An outline of the programme arranged by the London County Council for the forthcoming visit of the Municipal Council of Paris on October 16 was announced yesterday.

The first function will be a dinner, at which the French visitors will be entertained by Mr. E. A. Cornwall, the Chairman of the London County Council.

Later, all the most important municipal undertakings will be shown, together with the chief places of interest in the metropolis.

The visit will last a week, M. Bellan, the Syndic of the Municipal Council of Paris, having returned home after making the final arrangements.

BULLS IN THE BOROUGH.

Amazing Inconsequence of Irish Replies to a Magistrate's Questions.

"Did you strike him?" inquired the magistrate at Tower Bridge yesterday during the hearing of an assault case, the chief participants in which were Irish.

"Sure, I didn't, and if I did I deserved it, and it was an accident," was the reply.

"And what was your sister doing?"

"Oh, she had a fistful of poker, and I've got two witnesses here, but they're not present to prove it."

RED FLAG OF LIBERTY.

Extraordinary Insult to a Regiment of French Cuirassiers.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

PARIS, Wednesday.—An extraordinary insult has been offered to the French army at Béru, near Tonnerre.

On arriving at the village where they were billeted, a regiment of cuirassiers were astounded to find that the only decoration was a huge red flag blazoned with the Tree of Liberty, hoisted in the market place—the revolutionary emblem.

The next day, however, the flag had disappeared, having been hauled down and torn to ribbons by some patriotic person.

The mayor, an individual named Carré Firmin, was furious.

At the head of the local Anarchists and some women and children, he marched up to the officers of the regiment and covered them with abuse, winding up by singing the revolutionary "Internationale," and calling for cheers for the rank and file, and groans for the officers.

It is said that the Minister for War will take the matter up.

TOO MANY FLOWERS.

So great was the number of entries at the Royal Caledonian Horticultural Society's Flower Show, held in Edinburgh yesterday, that the Waverley Market proved too small to hold the exhibits.

Many of the 1,860 entries had to be placed on the roof of the market.

As the battleship Gladiator was leaving Portsmouth she collided with the training-ship St. Vincent, carrying away the boat davits of the latter and doing other damage.

THE CASE FOR MISS LUTINA.

Suggestion That Constable Tried
To Procure Perjured Evidence.

DRAMATIC SCENE IN COURT

Most remarkable evidence was produced at the Clerkenwell Police Court yesterday when Mr. Bros. resumed investigation of a charge of soliciting brought against Miss Lilian Grey, better known as Aida Lutina, elocutionist and actress.

Miss Grey, attired in black, and attended by a nurse in uniform, seemed in a highly hysterical state, and as the police called further witnesses more than once broke down, exclaiming, "Let me die, let me die!" "It is not true." "Oh, my poor father."

The police case was duly completed, and then Mr. Cox Sinclair, on behalf of Miss Grey, called witnesses, one of whom, William Garton, a crane driver, made a most sensational statement.

On the night of the alleged offence he saw a young lady he recognised as Miss Lutina passing on the left. There was no one else, except a constable, in sight, and witness noticed none immediately after.

Did you see this lady speak to anyone?—No.

What did you next see?—I saw a policeman speak to the lady, and then take her by the arm and rush her away down Kenton-street.

Amazing Allegation.

Have you seen the constable (Clark) who arrested this lady since?—Yes; he came to me and asked me if I had seen him lock up a woman, and would I swear false that there was another man coming up Marchmont-street.

What did you say?—I said, "No, I will not."

What did he reply?—He said, "What the — did you see anything for? Haven't you seen the papers? They mean having me for perjury."

Then he went away, but two minutes later he returned and said, "Driver, remember I haven't seen you this morning."

By Mr. Musket (for the police): He had come forward to give the true version of the matter entirely of his own free will. He had not been influenced by any solicitor, and had attended the court in his own time without having received any subpoena, so that justice might be done.

Candid Witness's Comment.

William Ernest Fielding, employed at the Tube station, Berners-street, said he heard the previous witness and the constable talking. Oaths were used, perjury was mentioned, and he heard the officer remark: "Mind, I haven't seen you."

He (Fielding), like his mate, wished to see justice done, and he had come forward of his own accord. What is your view?—If I had a sister of my own I would like her treated properly.

What do you think of this case?—That it's a shame that a respectable girl should be treated so.

Mr. Gerard Van der Berg, a Dutch musician, employed at the Travellers' Restaurant, said at the time in question he and his brother saw Miss Grey near the Russell Hotel. Besides two policemen there was no one else in the street.

Soon afterwards they heard cries for help, and Miss Grey asked them to go to the station, but they declined on the ground of their poor knowledge of English.

Another witness was Dr. Barton, of Lamb's Conduit-street, who has attended Miss Grey for two and a half years.

Mr. Sinclair: Is she a respectable woman?

Dr. Barton (with emphasis): I believe so.

The case was adjourned for a week.

QUEEN'S LABOUR YARD.

Energetic Provision for Dealing with Canning Town Unemployed.

To prepare the Queen's Labour Yard at Canning Town for an early opening, every possible effort is being made.

Through her Majesty's gracious gift of £50 to the Church Army, the Rev. W. Carlile will be enabled to find employment for many of the destitute.

Large premises in Forty Acre-lane have been acquired, and they will be known as the Queen's Labour Yard.

There will be accommodation for at least 200 men working at a time, and if sufficient funds are forthcoming to find employment for this number a great amount of good will be done.

Already the distress in the East End is painfully apparent. At the Church Army's labour yard at Brent-road, Canning Town, there were over 200 men waiting yesterday in the hope of obtaining a few hours' wood-chopping.

MORE DOCKERS FIND WORK.

At the docks yesterday the improvement of the last two days in the labour conditions was fully maintained. A large number of men found employment, there being many large steamers waiting.

AGAPEMONITE DEFENCE.

Shareholders Dismiss Director in Spite of an Extraordinary Speech.

Mr. Charles Stone Read, secretary to the notorious Agapemontite leader, Smyth-Pigott, made an extraordinary speech at yesterday's meeting of the V.V. Bread Company's shareholders, which was held at Salisbury House.

The chairman of the company, Mr. F. Bedow, said the directors were sorry to have called the shareholders together for such an unpleasant reason. After referring to the public exposures of the objectionable proceedings at the "Abode of Love," he moved:

That Mr. Charles Stone Read, one of the directors of the company, should be removed from the office of director as from the date of the resolution.

Then Mr. Read, a very tall, thin man, of about fifty years, with a high forehead and thin grey hair, rose to make his defense.

He said he refused to resign on the grounds of religious freedom, and the way this remark was greeted showed that there were many Agapemontites present. Mr. Read said he had been elected because he was an Agapemontite, and the company had been in an almost hopeless position until helped by those who believed that Brother Prince had been sent to prepare the way for the coming of the Messiah.

"Believe me," he added, "it is not in the interests of the company, but it is because I know that the Lord has come again and is now dwelling at Agapemone, that I am cast out by my colleagues."

Saying "Good-bye," the speaker left the meeting. On a show of hands seventeen to fourteen were in his favour, but on a poll being taken 46,770 votes were given for the resolution and only 2,958 against. Subject to confirmation at a later meeting the resolution was thus carried by an overwhelming majority.

KING'S NEW STATUE.

Mr. G. A. Wade's new statue of the King for Hong Kong.

FASTIDIOUS HUSBAND.

After 38 Years of Married Life Rejects and Suspects His Wife's Cooking.

A novel basis of an appeal for matrimonial separation was brought to the notice of Mr. Plowden, who sat at West London yesterday.

An elderly woman complained that her husband would not eat anything she cooked. Could she, therefore, have a separation.

Mr. Plowden: What does he complain of? Your sauce?—We have been married thirty-eight years, and he says I am poisoning him.

Oh, give the man a good dinner—something he really likes—and it will all come right.

BISHOP IN "MUFTI".

Having left his robes at home, Dr. Pritchard Hughes, Bishop of Llandaff, has delivered an address in Llandaff Church in his ordinary outdoor clothes.

The congregation were kept waiting while a messenger was sent for the robes, but he was so long gone that the service had to proceed.

HALF-MILE OF FLAME.

Record Firework Displays at the Crystal Palace Next Week.

FOR "MIRROR" READERS.

A sheet of flame half a mile long and half a mile high will be one of the attractions set before Daily Mirror readers on September 21, 22, 23, during the Daily Mirror Carnival at the Crystal Palace.

Messrs. C. T. Brock are the magicians who are going to display this wonderful blaze.

"The firework display which we are going to give to you readers," said Mr. Brock yesterday, "is the biggest thing we have ever undertaken. Our programme is not yet complete, but we are arranging for some exceptionally fine set pieces."

"Amongst others will be one 700ft. long, representing the destruction of the Russian fleet at the battle of the Sea of Japan. A gigantic wheel of fire 100ft. in diameter, a fire fountain 300ft. high, and at one time we shall show a sheet of flame half a mile long and half a mile high."

WORTH CROSSING ENGLAND TO SEE.

Mr. Brock added, with justifiable pride: "The spectacle will be worth travelling across England to see."

There is no need for any of the Daily Mirror readers to pay anything to see this mass of flame and the many other attractions that will be presented on those three days. We are inviting them to go to the Crystal Palace for nothing."

All you have to do is to buy your Daily Mirror as usual on the mornings of September 21, 22, and 23, and cut out the coupon which you will find in it, present that coupon at the Crystal Palace, and you will be requested to walk in and enjoy yourself without paying any entrance-fee.

But be sure that you get your Daily Mirrors on those three days (September 21, 22, 23). The rush for copies will be unprecedented, therefore make a certainty of securing one. You cannot get in for nothing unless you possess a coupon from the Daily Mirror of those dates.

"INSULTING" THE KAISER.

German Schoolboy Imprisoned for Life for a Piece of Childish Folly.

In the German Statute-book, recently revised, there are no fewer than 125 paragraphs detailing the fines and imprisonments which may be inflicted for lese-majesté.

The outrageous fashion in which people are punished for this offence is illustrated by a recent report made by a Daily Mirror correspondent.

One schoolboy dared another to write on a piece of paper: "I shouldn't care if the old Emperor were dead."

The boy (aged fourteen) wrote it, and his friend carried it to the head-master, who took it to the authorities. The boy was promptly arrested and sentenced to imprisonment for lese-majesté.

All efforts to secure a revision of the sentence have proved unavailing, and the boy languishes in prison for a mere piece of childish folly.

"DISHONEST" DEFENCE.

Judge Unsuccessfully Appeals to Young Man to Abandon Plea of Infancy.

A plea of infancy was successfully upheld in the City of London Court yesterday by Frederick Joseph Levy, who traded as a tailor, with three or four shops in the City, under the name of Leslie Stuart.

He was sued for £10 for goods supplied, and the judge, in reluctantly giving judgment for Levy, said the defence was a dishonest one. It would leave a bad mark against the defendant all his life, and it was an ugly thing for a young man to start life in that way.

If he wished to be honest he would withdraw his plea and pay by instalments, as winning would do more harm than if he lost five times the amount.

Levy said he could not do that.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Finding his lamp required relighting, a Wandsbury cyclist returning from Brighton stopped at the bottom of Hardcross Hill.

Suddenly he was attacked by unknown assailants, who threw him violently to the ground and rifled his pockets, containing several pounds.

NOT A SENTIMENTAL BEER.

"Bright, sparkling, and free from sentiment," is a Swanson brewer's description of his beer in a trade circular. Probably what was meant was "sediment."

HOW TO THRASH A WIFE.

Mr. Labouchere's Amusing Advice to Angry Husbands.

"So many social and domestic problems come up for discussion in the newspapers at this season of the year that it is a matter for some surprise that the important question: 'How to Thrash Your Wife' has not received in the Press the attention it deserves."

Such is the opening of a surprising article which Mr. Labouchere publishes in this week's "Truth."

"It is a question in which there is room for great diversity of opinion, and practice," continues the outspoken member for Northampton.

"Nothing is more certain to affect the tone of home life prejudicially than errors of judgment in administering correction to the wife and mother. It is so easy to beat your wife too much, or too little, or to do it in the wrong way."

Then, after commenting upon the statement made by a Leith magistrate, who, in an assault case, said: "If a woman requires to be chastised the husband should take a strap to her and not use his hand," Mr. Labouchere says that the use of the poker is apt to lead to serious consequences.

On the other hand, while a strap "stings abominably," it is "never likely to lead to trouble with a coroner's jury."

"The truth is, that the chastisement of a wife, who stands in need of correction—as the best of them do at times—is a delicate business, and should never be undertaken without care and deliberation."

"If it is bungled or overdone, and the police are called in, the whole moral effect is lost."

"Magistrates to do them justice are nearly always kindly and sympathetic to husbands who do their work with a reasonable amount of tact and discretion. They are not too particular about a black eye or two, a little blood, or an occasional broken rib."

FLORIN FOR A PENNY.

He Who Bestows a Silver Coin in Errort Cannot Demand Its Return.

An object-lesson in the care of loose money was incalculable at Marlborough-street Police Court yesterday.

By mistake Thomas Simmonds gave an elderly woman, a licensed pedlar, 2s instead of a penny to go away. Afterwards, discovering his mistake, he demanded it back, but this was refused. She was then given into custody.

"You gave it to her," said Mr. Kennedy, the magistrate. "Where is the larceny?"—"I cannot afford to lose 2s."

"She thought you a most generous man. You should be more careful with your money." The woman was discharged.

MASQUERAADING NEGRESS.

"Paul Downing" Sent to an Asylum as a Certified Lunatic.

Charged with being a wandering lunatic, Caroline Brogden appeared at the Mansion House yesterday.

Up to the present she has been known in this country as Paul Downing, under which name she passed while wearing man's clothing.

It will be remembered that when she was taken to Bow Infirmary it was discovered that she was a woman.

She suffered from hallucinations, it was stated, and possessed a strange assortment of articles, including a tobacco pouch, a pipe, a Bible, and a textbook.

She was sent to St. Osyth Asylum.

UNPOPULAR HYMN-BOOKS.

Publishers of the Revised "Ancient and Modern" Announce Another Edition.

At last, after ten months' silence, the publishers of the new edition of "Hymns Ancient and Modern" intend explaining them much-criticised action in robbing the Anglican hymn-book of some of its most popular tunes.

More than that, they are going to issue a fresh edition which will satisfy some of the objections raised at the time of the book's publication.

Chief among the objections brought against the revised hymn-book is the cutting out of the words:

Hark! the herald angels sing,
Glory to the new-born King;

and starting the well-known Xmas hymn:

Hark! how all the welkin rings,
Glory to the King of Kings!

Many clergymen refused to use the hymn at all in its revised form.

INNOCENT COIN INSULTED.

"Spurn the blood-stained Saxon shilling!" reads an exhortation on a card extensively circulated in Ireland urging Irishmen not to enlist in the British Army.

SAVAGES SHOPPING IN LONDON.

Salesmen Startled by Wild Cries from Dusky Warriors.

ATTEMPT TO BUY A WIFE.

Suddenly the silence was broken by a blood-curdling yell from the savages. Louder it grew and higher it rose till it ended in a hoarse long-drawn shriek. It was succeeded by others, till the air seemed alive with screams and war whoops.

This is not, as might be imagined, the beginning of a stirring story of savage warfare, but merely an attempt to describe what happened yesterday when the Somalis, who will perform their famous war dance during the Daily Mirror gala at the Crystal Palace, began their first day's shopping in London.

Six brown warriors took part in the expedition. They were robed in what appeared to be white nightshirts fastened round the waist. Each carried two spears, a deadly-looking sword, and a shield of hide.

They descended upon the Bon Marché at Brixton, anxious to buy many coloured stuffs for themselves, their many wives, and their children.

STARTLED THE SALESMEN.

But the strenuous brown men declared the unfortunate salesmen were "mahonda" (no good). The stuffs they offered were "mahonda." "Mahonda, mahonda," yelled the dusky warriors, as they eagerly scanned roll upon roll of gorgeously coloured calico spread out for their inspection.

"Woobooka, woobooka," they shrieked, as what they required was not forthcoming. Things were beginning to look serious when the interpreter intervened and explained that to insult them was not the one object of the salesman's life. After that things were quiet.

A run in the electric railway from Stockwell was the next item on the programme.

STOLE THE MULLAH'S HORSE.

At Earl's Court, the next place visited, some little difficulty occurred when it had to be explained to the chief that he could not buy beautiful white women. Even for £5. "Not for sale," he echoed sadly. "Truly this is a curious country."

A stirring story was told by Ismail Uderwar, one of the six.

He had been fighting for the Mullah, and decided to desert to the English. Accordingly he stole the Mullah's rifle and horse, broke through the sentries, and rode for his life, hotly pursued by his infuriated one-time allies. For eight days he tracked through the desert with practically nothing to eat.

He reached the English camp in safety, and fought vigorously for the rest of the campaign, as a shield, half hacked to pieces by sword-cuts, and several spear wounds on his body abundantly testify.

£10,200 INSURANCE PAID.

"Answers" Pays £1,000 in Connection with the Witham Disaster.

The fifty-sixth claim for the free insurance offered to everyone who carries the current number of "Answers" and is killed by a railway accident has just been paid in connection with the terrible disaster on September 1, at Witham Station.

Among the persons killed was Mr. Frank J. R. Wood, a commercial traveller, living at 189, Broomwood-road, Clapham Common, S.W. When the body was searched by Inspector David Scott, of the Essex Constabulary, a copy of the current issue of "Answers" was found in the unfortunate man's pocket; and, as found in the pamphlet with the free insurance offer printed in every copy, a claim for £1,000 was made on behalf of the widow on the following day by the Rev. F. S. W. Wood, the father of the deceased.

The affidavit of the police inspector was promptly forwarded, together with the certificate of Mr. Wood's marriage, which brought to light the pathetic fact that the wedding took place as recently as the eighth of last month, at Newton Abbott. As the newly married couple had, indeed, only just settled down after their honeymoon when the terrible disaster at Witham removed the head of the household.

A cheque for £1,000 has been forwarded by the Proprietors of "Answers" to Mrs. Wood, thus being the fifth claim for the full insurance of £1,000 which has been paid. Four claims for the sum of £100 insurance money, which is offered by "Answers" in connection with fatal railway accidents to persons who do not happen to be passengers at the time, have already been paid this year, making a grand total of fifty-six payments amounting in all to the sum of £10,200.

These facts go to show the importance of carrying a copy of "Answers" whenever travelling by railway.

LAST NIGHT'S NEWS ITEMS.

Mr. W. H. Lever has consented to stand in the Liberal interest for the Wirral Division of Cheshire at the next election.

Lord Brampton, better known as Mr. Justice Hawkins, attains his eighty-eighth birthday today.

Sixty-one missionaries, thirty of whom are taking their wives abroad with them, held a farewell service at the Leysons Hall last night.

Etton vicarage was entered yesterday morning by housebreakers, who took a quantity of silver plate, some private Communion service plate, and the contents of a missionary-box.

Twenty-seven cases were dealt with during the last two years and twenty-three settled under the Conciliation (Trades Disputes) Act, according to a report issued yesterday.

Admitting he had stolen the £4 that a friend of his missed from a drawer in his house, Walter Barningham was fined 40s and 14s. costs at Stratford yesterday—net profit, £1 6s.

Many hundreds of beautiful examples of photography are to be seen at the thirteenth exhibition of the Photographic Salon, which will be opened to the public at the Institute of Water-colour Painters,

All bell-ringing records were broken yesterday at Ashton Parish Church, near Manchester, where a party of ringers rang a peal of Stedman Cinques, consisting of 5,007 changes, in three hours forty-one minutes.

Complaints having been made that the boys who sell newspapers in the streets of Douglas overcharge their customers, it was recommended at the town council meeting yesterday that peddlers' licences should be issued to them.

At Lamberhurst (Kent) and Cuckfield (Sussex) boys in the elementary schools are being taught to shoot.

It is believed that £95 worth of jewellery, lost by a visitor at Bridlington Hydro, has been taken by another guest who was missed at about the same time.

So affected was Frederick Dransfield, of Cleckheaton, Yorkshire, at seeing an accident in the street that he had an apoplectic stroke and died yesterday morning.

Mrs. Gowling, the widow of the late Dr. Gowling, of Swansea, has just been married to Mr. Gus Davies, a local pietrot. The chief of the pietrot troupe gave the bride away.

"She is one of those mothers who are too weak to say yes or no to their children," stated the school attendance officer at Cardiff, yesterday, at the hearing of a truancy case.

Said to be the handsomest member of the pig family, a specimen of the Red River hog from West Africa has just arrived at the Zoo. Its prevailing colour is a brilliant crimson.

Picture postcards with beautifully-coloured representations of farms and landscapes in Canada are now issued by Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Canadian Commissioner of Emigration.

For selling sausages, with each pound of which about forty-three grains of boracic acid had been mixed as a preservative, a butcher at Keighley (Yorks), was yesterday fined 10s. and costs.

On a charge of threatening the life of Sir Hickman Bacon, Bart., and attempting to force money from him by threats, a man named Charles Kershaw has been arrested at Glossop, Derbyshire.

RAINBOW RAILWAY.

Gorgeous Colours on the New Baker-street and Waterloo Line.

DATE OF OPENING.

The green hoarding which has so long disfigured the south-east corner of Trafalgar-square will soon be removed.

The Daily Mirror penetrated yesterday into the hidden depths of the earth at this point, and explored a vast series of echoing caverns below—caverns which in January next will be open to the public as the Baker-street and Waterloo Railway.

But a few steps down the eye is greeted by a vestibule with glistening dark green tiles covering the wall to a height of about eight feet, above which appear the white tiles rendered familiar in the "Twopenny Tube." Ticket offices of the same cool green with artistic iron grilles line the wall.

The woodwork, doors, and frames of this hall are of solid teak of beautiful workmanship.

The corridors are gayly decorated with white, pale green, and dark brown tiles. The coloured corridor leads to a white tiled station, while the white one opens into a station the walls of which are fantastically adorned with colour.

Indeed, variety seems to be the keynote of the decorations. No two stations are alike, not even a single platform has its twin, in all the forty-five stations of the new railway. The station buildings, already familiar to Londoners, are crimson, the carriages scarlet and white, while brown and green and white predominate in the depths below. The stations have but one point in common—in every one of them the name is plainly lettered for all to see.

GOLD LEAVES LONDON.

Consols Weaken on Further Large Withdrawals from the Bank of England.

CAPEL COURT, Wednesday Evening.—Although the settlement is still in course of adjustment, markets generally have been cheerful throughout the day, except for a weakening tendency in Consols, which closed down at 89 13-16, owing to the reported withdrawal of a further large supply of gold from the Bank. The gilt-edged market generally kept firm.

Japanese bonds relapsed owing to the sinking of the battleship Mikasa, although at the finish they were above the worst. Rio Tinto shares were weak on rumours of the grade of ore falling off.

A reaction set in in the Rhodesian section of the Kaffir market, and, although there was some improvement towards the close, prices were generally well below last night's closing. Among Westralians Kalgoorlie and South Kalgoorlie were the features. West Africans were dull, apart from Akrokerri, which were supported.

Among Miscellaneous shares brewery issues came into further prominence, and another good feature was the strength of Anglo-American Telegraph "A." Chinese land descriptions were easier. Hudson's Bays improved.

THE AGE OF BLUFF.

IT is only a few days since M. Witte took the world into his confidence and told how cleverly he bluffed during the Peace Negotiations. It struck many people then as amazing that a question of such enormous importance to humanity as the continuance of a war between two great nations should be treated in a manner so utterly lacking in seriousness. This was what M. Witte said:

I was in a frightful position. Fortunately I succeeded in holding out to the end.

The Japanese could not rest in my face what was passing in my heart. From the outset I assumed with an indiferent tone that it eventually carried conviction.

When the Japanese presented their written conditions I laid the latter aside without looking at them and spoke of something else.

On leaving the room I intentionally forgot the conditions lying on the table. When one of the Japanese plenipotentiaries drew my attention to this, asking if I did not wish to take away secret documents which someone might read, I put the papers carelessly into my pocket.

It was thus to the last minute of the negotiations.

In fact, M. Witte behaved exactly as a poker player behaves when he is trying to bluff his adversary. Only this, instead of being a game at cards, with a few coins at stake, was a diplomatic contest upon the issue of which depended the lives and happiness of hundreds of thousands of men and women.

At this moment another such contest is in progress between Sweden and Norway. Norway wants to be an independent State—whether a kingdom or a republic is not yet settled. Sweden feels very sore about it. If they cannot agree to part friends, there is a possibility of a hideous war.

The point upon which the negotiations have chiefly turned during the last few days has been this. Sweden asks Norway to demolish certain fortifications. Norway has been holding out against this demand, not, it is believed, because she really objects to comply with it, but simply as a "bluff," so that, when she does give way on this point, she may be able to say to Sweden, "Now you must not ask anything more of us. You have gained that point. You must leave us all the rest."

It is scarcely necessary to say that such tactics as these might easily lead to war. Bluffing is a dangerous as well as an unworthy expedient.

There is far too much of the spirit of bluff in the affairs of individuals nowadays. It is a recognised method of doing business between men, and, as nations are merely men in the lump, it has become the practice of nations also—or of some nations.

It is to be hoped it will never become the practice of the British nation. Lord Beaconsfield set the right example when he gave his final answer to the Russian Ambassador at the Berlin Congress and ordered a special train to take him home. The Russian thought the Englishman was merely "trying it on," but he happened to hear about the special train, and speedily came to terms. He had to be taught the Englishmen do not bluff. It was a lesson he never forgot.

It was a policy of bluff on Russia's part, coupled with the erroneous belief of Russian statesmen that Japan was bluffing, which dug the graves of 150,000 men in Manchuria. It would be a pitiful disaster if the same childish manceuvre should hurl Swedes and Norwegians against one another in a combat to the death.

A THOUGHT FOR TO-DAY.

Life is an interval of noise between two silences.
Renan.

THE TSAR, THE PEASANT, AND THE CONSTITUTION SAUSAGE.

[From the "Wahre Jacob" (German), which evidently thinks the Tsar's game with his people may end disastrously for him.]

THIS MORNING'S GOSSIP.

THE royal party which gathers every year round the aged King of Denmark is now complete. Nearly all of them look forward to this peaceful visit to Copenhagen as the really restful holiday in their sometimes troubled year. For the Dowager Empress of Russia this year it will be a strange contrast to the stormy months of anxiety and calamity which have passed in Russia, and she showed, as a matter of fact, a good deal of emotion for one who is supposed to be outwardly very calm when she arrived and met her friends at the station.

The life at Bernstorff, King Christian's modest-looking white-washed chateau, five or six miles from Copenhagen, is extraordinarily humdrum—far too quiet and domesticated, in fact, for certain of the royal guests who sometimes go there. The old King always maintains that he owes his capital health and spirits to his methodical life, and he likes to see all the members of his family—even if they happen to be kings and queens—conform to his own habits. Therefore, his guests are generally up by eight o'clock and meet for a family breakfast at nine—and the King dislikes seeing anyone absent from the table. Then there is a mild morning spent in the park or gardens, a mild drive in the afternoon, another family meal, tea, in the dining-room, and then a subdued evening (except when there is a ball or a theatre) brings the day to an end.

In spite of this method and economy, King Christian is by nature rather forgetful. He is always forgetting, for example, to take money with him when he goes out, and a comic story used to be told of a stately member of the Court whom he met once and took to lunch at a restaurant. When the bill was presented the King found that he had not a penny with him, and the courier consequently paid. He was afterwards returned the money with the lauging request that he would not "raise a rebellion about it."

The Oban Meeting began yesterday, and it looks as though it were to be unusually successful this year. Lord Dunmore is to preside over the competitions. He is a distinctly interesting person—far different in tastes and opinions from the many motoring and bridge-playing people formed nowadays by the atmosphere of society. He is, first and foremost, a traveller and a sportsman; then, strange to say, a Christian Scientist of the most uncompromising kind. He succeeded his father when he was only four years old, and became a good shot long before he came of age.

To treat him as a sportsman first I may recall a comic episode of his youth. He went out shooting with a keeper one day and wagered, before they started, that each should carry the other's bag. Now the keeper turned to be a fine young fellow, dressed with his companion's clothes. The keeper began to smile maliciously, until at last the boy, driven to despair, calmly "brought down" a calf, which was browing near, and thus had an unlook'd revenge upon him.

a dreamer. Therefore his devotion to the cause of the Christian Scientists is all the more remarkable. No doubt he holds the doctrine in an innocuous form. The only Christian Scientist I have had the privilege of meeting held it in a truculent way. He was poor, but his creed taught him that poverty was imaginary. He had only to think himself rich and he would straightway enjoy the privileges of the wealthy. I do not think, however, that that inferior portion of the organism, the stomach, can have been convinced by the arguments of his brain, because he grew distressingly thin.

So one day his friends implored him not to think so hard about money, but to take up a little work with a view of obtaining some. Accordingly he began to give music lessons. Unfortunately, the subject of music led him inevitably to that of his favourite creed. And the very first day on which he gave a lesson he was discovered pursuing his pupil round the table with a poker in his hand, apparently intending to enforce doctrinal points with the aid of that instrument. When he was asked to explain he said that the incident had never really happened—the pupil had imagined it. But the pupil's parents were not satisfied with such musical methods, and they politely asked him to depart.

There is no doubt as to the success of the Doncaster meeting this year. The fine weather is bringing people to the fair-famed Town Moor who are not very often seen there. Yet for some inexplicable reason the authorities have raised the prices all round—not without giving considerable offence.

The arrangements for the conveyance of the King and other guests of Lord and Lady Savile are excellent. Motor-cars arrive at the Abbey doors a few minutes before noon, and the drive to Ollerton Station is only a matter of a few moments. A special train is waiting, and Doncaster is reached a little before one o'clock. From the station to the course the King proceeds in a large wagonette which has been sent down from the royal mews at Buckingham Palace. A royal groom in plain black livery precedes the carriage, together with about half a dozen mounted policemen. The party return in the same way.

Amongst those to be seen at Doncaster yesterday were the Duchess of Newcastle, Lady Londonderry, Lady Ormonde (who came with Lord and Lady Scarborough), Lord and Lady Fitzwilliam (who can boast of entertaining the largest house-party of the week), Lord Clarendon, Lord Cholmondeley, Lord Crewe, Lord Rothschild, Lady Annesley, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Baring, Lord Ronaldshay, Lady Kathleen Pilkington, and hundreds of others who go about from one race meeting to another throughout the year.

Amongst the well-known people now staying at Claridge's Hotel is the Infanta Eulalia of Spain, who is paying a visit to the Princess of Monaco. Her Royal Highness has just come from Paris. Claridge's is a favourite hotel for royal people who want to travel without parapheeria, to stay in quiet places, and yet to be situated in the midst of things with every possible comfort. It is one of the few hotels which are smart without being at all showy.

THROUGH THE "MIRROR."

THE PRICE OF FURS.

I fail to see how the wearers of costly furs are responsible for the miserably low wages of the workers. The fur-wearers would buy the furs whether the workers are sweated or have a "living wage." They would not even know.

Mr. Fair is misleading when he speaks of the poor en masse, unmindful that there is a wide divergence among them. The thrifty, industrious, sober poor; the idle, the drunken, and the feeble-minded, the latter the despair of philanthropists. There are many deserving poor in great privation through undeserved misfortune, but considering the large sums contributed in relief last winter by the "fur-wearing" class, it does seem that they are not unmindful of their poorer brethren.

The saddest part of it all is that so many deserving cases receive the least assistance, while the most clamorous and thristless get the lion's share. Tunbridge Wells.

CHIVALRY ON THE DOWN GRADE.

It is interesting to read the conflicting views expressed by your correspondents, "Ethel" and "C. E. D." I, also, have to travel to my work every day, and very seldom have to stand in the train.

As most of the men are "City clerks," I think it will be acknowledged that it is from them that I receive the courtesy of a proffered seat. I think, therefore, that "Ethel" is not quite fair in stating that this class of young man is wanting in manners.

Naturally, I prefer my own class, and I do not agree with "C. E. D.," who evidently thinks that if a man is well-dressed and well-bred, he must be a "fop." Your correspondents have evidently no acquaintance with Army and Navy men, or they would agree with "Ethel" that it is among them that good manners are the rule.

ANOTHER OFFICER'S DAUGHTER.

EAT BROWN BREAD.

The importance of the brown bread question cannot be overstated, lying as it does at the foundation of national health.

Wiser than we, the Germans make universal use of "schwarzbrodt," black bread, to their physical advantages, and after a short trial, even English visitors get to like it.

White flour should be abolished, and wholemeal used for bread, cakes, pastry, and all. Then we should have taken the first step to stop the deterioration of the race.

IN MY GARDEN.

SEPTEMBER 15.—Lovely weather has returned; the garden, basking in the hot September sunshine, is full of interest and beauty.

Quickly the first of the autumn-flowering crocuses are coming out. How pretty a mass of their delicate blue flowers look peeping through a green carpet of aubretia on the rockery!

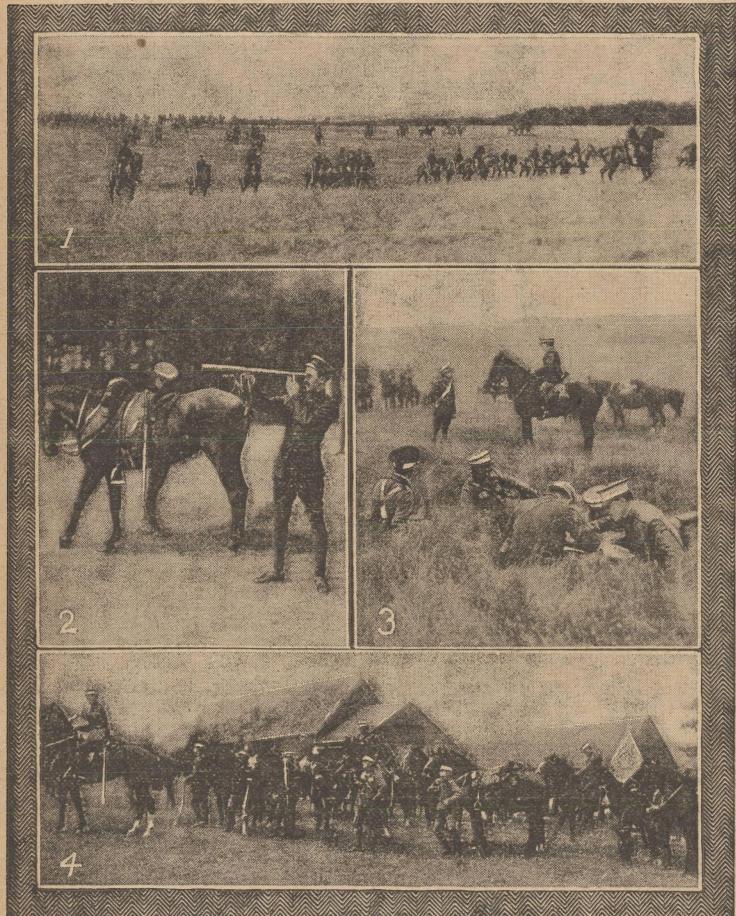

Michelia dasies are also beginning to bloom, and for the next six weeks will make a great show. These plants, almost the last perennials of the year to flower, are popular with everyone. Pretty as are the old garden varieties, the newer forms are far more showy and attractive, and cannot be too extensively grown.

MIMIC WARFARE ON THE BERKSHIRE DOWNS.

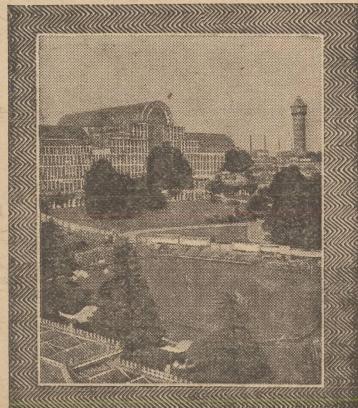

The cavalry manœuvres were continued yesterday in Berkshire, the mimic war taking the form of a march on London by an invading force which was met by a defending body. THREATENED STRIKE OF COAL PORTERS.

The burly coal porters, grimy giants who play with 224lb. sacks of coal, threaten to strike because the Coal Merchants' Association have notified the Union that wages will be reduced. The photographs taken yesterday show—(1) Discussing the proposed strike during dinner hour. (2) The arduous work of the coalheaver.

SIDE LIGHTS ON YESTERDAY'S NEWS.

Interesting Paragraphs Concerning
Current Events.

A Voter at Sixteen.

Among the most curious things brought to light during the present revision of voting-lists is the discovery at Blackburn that a minor has been on the list since he was sixteen years of age, and has, moreover, exercised the franchise. As he is still under age, his name has been now struck off.

A Race of Giants.

The 10,000 London coal-porters, who will present an ultimatum to their masters to-day are, physically, the finest type of men it would be possible to meet. Tall, broad and muscular, they carry 2cwt. sacks of coal with the greatest ease. If the contemplated strike resulted in disorder there would be trouble for the police.

Assassination in Figures.

Russia, the scene of revolution, bloodshed, and riots, has witnessed more assassinations this year than all the rest of the world. Figures published in St. Petersburg yesterday showed that in two months attempts were made on the lives of 116 officials. In forty-two cases the victims were killed on the spot, and sixty-two attempts resulted in the wounding of the official attacked.

Steel Trains for England.

The all-steel railway car has come to England, and the first carriage of the kind built in this country was finished by the Brush Electrical Engineering Company yesterday. The "Times" goes so far as to say that the steel cars, besides being more steady and comfortable than wooden ones, would avert the worst consequences of a railway collision by preventing "telescoping," fires, and the terrible lacerations caused by splintering wood.

"No Hat" Madness.

The army of "no hatters," so far from having disappeared, seems to have grown at the seaside towns this summer. Dr. Forbes Winslow, the brain specialist, made some emphatic remarks upon the subject yesterday. "People who go about without their hats in hot weather are simply tempting Providence," he said. "That way madness lies. Cigarette smoking on an empty stomach is also a potent factor in the making of a lunatic."

No Freak Cars Allowed.

Forty motor-cars, competing on the Isle of Man to-day for the Tourist Trophy, will take part in a race which, seeing that its object is to produce an ideal touring car, is of much more interest than a contest between speed monsters of tremendous horse-power. Freak cars are not allowed, and as only one gallon of petrol can be used for every twenty-five miles covered, the drivers will be mainly intent on saving every drop of oil possible.

But Togo Lives.

Nearly all the world's papers contain eloquent tributes to the magnificent work done by the Mikasa, now a sunken wreck. "She bore Togo and his fortunes from first," says the "Manchester Courier," "and it almost seems that grieving over the terms of peace, she has performed harikari in conformity with the national code of honour. But Togo lives, and, as Nelson was worth many times the Victory, so Togo is worth many times the Mikasa."

"Grape Cure" at Doncaster.

Among the thousands who witnessed the race for the St. Leger yesterday were scores of people who were supposed to be undergoing the "cure" at the neighbouring spa of Harrogate, but who forgot their ill-health for one day and cheered the winner as loudly as anyone. One well-known society man who was trying the "grape cure," now so popular at Weisbaden, took several pounds of luscious grapes with him—his daily "dose" was ten pounds—and stood in Tattersall's eating them, to the great amusement of the bookmakers.

General Booth's Peace-Offering.

General Booth is now trying to raise £5,000 as a peace-offering to Japan. The Salvation Army already has seventy-one officers engaged in social and missionary work in the principal Japanese towns, but the general wants to extend his operations in the "Britain of the East," and use Japan as a recruiting ground for Salvationist missionaries. "I want £2,000 for a training college for Japanese officers," he told a Daily Mirror representative, "£2,000 for the dispatching of reinforcements, and £1,000 for immediate extension in the interior of Japan."

"Into the Jaws of Hell."

"Regrettable incidents" occur even on the manoeuvre ground. All the troops now playing at war in Berkshire—except, of course, the regiments concerned—were talking yesterday of a remarkablefeat attempted on the previous day by two regiments of cavalry attached to the Red army. Forgetting all Sir John French's instructions, they actually charged up a steep hill, on the top of which a whole infantry division was deeply entrenched, and supported by twelve guns. Sir John, who witnessed the incident, gave the colonel a "brotherly talk," and then, in sorrow and in anger, ordered the troops home.

AGAPEMONITE EXPELLED FROM BREAD COMPANY.

Mr. Charles Stone Read, Smyth-Pigott's secretary at the Abode of Love, Spaxton, was dismissed from the board of the V.V. Broad Co. yesterday, after an extraordinary meeting of shareholders. The photographs show:—(1) Mr. Read (the figure on the left) and Mrs. Read going to the meeting. (2) Mr. Read leaving after his expulsion. (3) The Agapemonite upholding his creed.

"UNDERGROUND" RAILWAY MISHAP YESTERDAY.

At Moorgate-street Station at two o'clock yesterday afternoon an electric train became derailed, and, as the photograph shows, dashed violently into the platform. No passengers were injured.

"ONE OF THE FINEST CHILDREN EVER SEEN."

The words quoted above are an extract from a letter received by Messrs. Savory and Moore, Limited, which letter is typical of thousands of others. The writer says: "I wish to tell you that I have entirely brought up my baby, who is seventeen months old, on 'Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids.' He is pronounced one of the finest children ever seen." Obviously, every mother would like to be able to write in a similar way, and it is therefore worth while to consider for a moment why such satisfactory results follow the use of "Savory and Moore's Best Food."

THE REASON WHY.

There is one reason, and one reason only, why children brought up on "Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids" make such splendid and marked progress. "Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids" is the result of thought, investigation, long experiment, and applied scientific knowledge. Every element needed for the building of a sturdy frame, vigorous brain, strong nerves, and efficient muscles, is combined in precisely the correct proportion in "Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids." Tested both theoretically and practically, "Savory and Moore's Best Food" satisfies every requirement of a perfect food, not only for infants, but also for invalids, the aged, and those whose digestion is weak.

SIGNS OF IMPROPER FEEDING.

A baby may be improperly fed, or it may be overfed, and these conditions show themselves by certain unmistakable signs. The infant fails to properly increase in weight, or it is too fat without due development of muscular strength, which indicates the rickety condition, and the motions are unhealthy. Where such signs of improper feeding are present immediate steps should be taken to improve the condition of baby's health and to build up a strong constitution equal to the demands of later life. A large amount of useful information calculated to promote this desirable end will be found in the booklet which Savory and Moore are pleased to send to all who are interested.

DELICATE BABIES.

If baby's ill-health is due to improper feeding, nothing will so quickly benefit the child as "Savory and Moore's Best Food." Over and over again have mothers written quite voluntarily saying that as soon as they commenced using "Savory and Moore's Best Food" evidences of improvement quickly became apparent, and that these continued until the child was once again the picture of health. That where there had been vomiting and diarrhoea these unpleasant troubles stopped at once, and that the very first meal with "Savory and Moore's Best Food" was digested. We quote from a letter received. "We tried —, and other foods, without success, the baby being unable to retain them. At this stage we tried 'Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids,' which, to our great relief, we found she was able to assimilate from the very first. Your food has been the means of saving the child's life."

INVALIDS STRENGTHENED, AGED NOURISHED.

"Savory and Moore's Best Food" is an ideal article of diet for invalids, convalescents, nursing mothers, delicate people, growing children, the aged, and those whose digestion is in any way weakened, and who consequently find a difficulty in retaining and assimilating ordinary food. One striking advantage of "Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids" is that it may be prepared in many different and appetising ways. The importance of this point will be readily understood, because nothing is more characteristic of the invalid condition than the craving for a change of diet.

YOU ARE INVITED TO SEND.

Messrs. Savory and Moore are very anxious that parents, nurses, and others should convince themselves of the value of their "Best Food for Infants and Invalids," and they therefore offer to send a large trial tin in return for six penny stamps. You will also receive with the trial tin instructions how to prepare "Savory and Moore's Best Food for Infants and Invalids," both for the young, the convalescent, and the aged. The book about baby gives the correct height at different ages, the correct weight, particulars as to muscular development, and the age at which the various teeth should be cut. Food tables for infants up to the age of about two years are also included, and there is a very large amount of useful information which it concerns all parents to know.

"SAVORY AND MOORE'S BEST FOOD FOR INFANTS AND INVALIDS"

is supplied by all Chemists and Stores in tins at 1s., 2s., 3s., and 10s., or a Large Trial Tin will be sent post free for six penny stamps by Messrs. Savory and Moore, Limited, Chemists to The King, 149, New Bond-Street, London, W., to all who mention the Daily Mirror. A postcard will bring the booklet referred to.

Here is a list of symptoms which are indeed serious in their consequences. Are you suffering from any of them?

INDIGESTION,

AJAX DRY-CELL

Is a body battery made of separate dry cells. It is easily, comfortably worn next to the body during the night or during the day. It surpasses anything of its kind ever known, and is the only electric body battery that will give out for hours at a time that blood building, nerve feeding force which is the basis of all health. "AJAX" DRY-CELL is not an electric belt, there is no charging to do—no vinegar or acid solutions to bother with. "AJAX" DRY-CELL is a body appliance that contributes even, continuous currents of warmth, exhilarating life force to the weak parts, and with no sting—no shock—no unpleasant sensation. "AJAX" DRY-CELL is nature's own way of healing—of bringing relief to the suffering and cure to the diseased organs. You feel better just as soon as the battery is applied.

FEED THE WEAK PARTS.—There is a reason for every pain or ache you ever have, and back of the weak organ itself back of the nerve that controls—back where the life food comes from—electric force is formed. Just as the combustion of coal in the firebox gives out heat that creates steam which runs the engine, so in the same manner does the breaking up of food in your stomach give forth gases that generate electric heat which feeds and nourishes the nerves that control your body.

Now it is plain that if an organ fails to do its work right this will affect the whole body, and get short. Scientists have long since proved that electricity is the basis of all human vitality.

So, if the organ gets weak, it isn't to blame—neither is the nerve that supplies its energy—but the lack of fuel which electricity alone supplies.

BUILDS UP BY CREATING.

There is where the great use and marvellous power of "AJAX" DRY-CELL comes in as a builder, for it creates new force that supplies the demands of the nerves which control the weak organs. Daily currents of life stimulate. These are no injurious effects from "AJAX" DRY-CELL, because it is nature's own remedy.

Every organ is given new life and vigour, and you will feel your strength renewed. "AJAX" DRY-CELL gives immediate relief and positively cures when our directions are followed. Don't neglect the call of the weak organ a day longer. Give it the strength and life of "AJAX" DRY-CELL.

If it is Rheumatism, Weak Back, Lumbago—or just tired, wretched nerves—"AJAX" DRY-CELL can cure you, make you feel well and happy. Simply let us prove it. Send in the coupon. Call if you can, or send at once for the free book.

NEW MATERIALS AND OLD FAVOURITES REVIVED—CHARMING FULL DRESS TOILETTES.

VELVET, SATIN, AND LACE.

FABRICS ON THE LIST FOR AUTUMN
TOILETTES.

It is very evident that a great velvet season is in prospect, and, luckily, the exquisite softness and beauty of the velvets of to-day make them infinitely more amenable to the desires of the dressmakers than in the old days, when the material was hard to handle and did not lend itself readily to all kinds of manipulation. Graduated bands of velvet will be a favourite skirt trimming for frocks of light-weight woolen materials and silk, and velvet revers, collars, buttons, bows, and cinctures are legion. Ribbed velvets of either a narrow or wide stripe also promise to have a great success.

Satin To Be in Vogue.

Satin and cloth are combined in some of the best dress models that have been seen. For example, a cloth skirt is accompanied by a picture-satin coat of the same colour, trimmed with hand embroidery and lace. Satin is a material that is this autumn very dear to the hearts of the dressmakers, and that both as a dress material and a trimming has gained greatly in popularity. For dinner and evening wear it will, so rumour says, be smarter than the more diaphanous fabrics. Coats of satin are worn, not only with cloth skirts, but with skirts of mousseline, chiffon, crêpe, and so forth, for the evening. One charming frock seen lately had a skirt of moonlight blue crêpe de chine, trimmed with satin bands of the same colour, and a coat of satin falling to the edge of the skirt at the back in long coat-tails. A flat band of lace bordered the coat, formed epaulettes, and trimmed the elbow-sleeves, and a chemisette of lace was observed between the coat fronts.

The new moiré silks are very simple and soft, and are remarkably beautiful in design. Moiré ribbons will be greatly used also as trimmings. Pekin silk, which to the average woman means only a velvet stripe on a silk or satin ground, though the French apply it to other white and coloured striped effects, is in high favour for revers, waistcoats, and so forth, and is even used for complete coats. Black and white and all-black are restored to favour this autumn, both in millinery and frocks, a fact for which many women will be grateful.

Banana Yellow Shade.

The pastel shades in cloth seem to have a perennial place in feminine affection, and the mauve and orchid tones, which have had a great success this summer, will be much favoured, as well as primrose, during the autumn. Banana yellow and the shade known as sauterne, the soft rose-ancient and blues of the hydrangea order are other popular light hues, while in the dark colours the various shades of russet red are very much in evidence among autumnal materials.

A revival of the turquoise shades is predicted, heralded by several exquisite turquoise costumes worn by leaders of fashion during the height of the Paris season. The colour is repeated often in the newest millinery, and turquoise-jewelled trimmings figure conspicuously among the latest inspirations, but probably the colour will be mainly used as a relieving note in dressmaking and millinery.

Gold and silver embroideries are again promised great favour, and a touch of gold enters into many of the prettiest new braids, galons, and applique trimmings. A cord of gold in many instances finishes one edge of the velvet ribbon bands that are so much liked as a trimming in small quantities upon pretty corsages and fanciful little wraps.

The dress on the left is made of shot oyster-white pink and blue taffetas, completed by a cream lace pelerine, edged with a quilling of palest blue chiffon. On the right a cream silk gown is depicted, worn with a black Brussels lace coat, and flounced with cream-spotted net.

ALL THAT A MAN HATH.

dismiss that. Those are not the kind of traces left by an experienced criminal. Besides, there is nothing else to coincide with it. In all probability Mrs. Dangerville cut her finger.

"You don't think," said Dick, turning a little paler, "that there is—that there can be any truth in the French girl's fear—that Mrs. Dangerville has been the victim of foul play?"

"Not for a moment," said the detective decidedly. "Put that thought out of your mind, Mr. Dangerville. Do not allow it to dwell there for a moment. There are no traces of a struggle in Mrs. Dangerville's room. I will stake my life there has been no foul play. When a—a crime of that kind has been committed it leaves unmistakable traces—inevitably. I can't explain to you exactly what I mean, but directly I enter a room I can see—"

He stopped short; he could not bring himself even to speak the dread word "murder" to this young man, robbed with such mysterious suddenness, of his bride.

"I must admit," he added hurriedly, "that from the very slight indications I have to go upon, and particularly from what you tell me of Mrs. Dangerville's character, I am personally much more inclined to the theory that your wife left the castle with intention, for some purpose that she did not wish either yourself or anyone else to know. This sounds unlikely, I know, even incredible; but I have seen so many things apparently just as incredible turn out to be as simple as A B C, and the only thing I have learnt to distrust is the obvious."

Up to this time all investigations had been made with the utmost secrecy, and, although vague rumours had got about, it had been intimated to all officials that any unnecessary publicity would be extremely painful both to the husband and father of the missing lady.

But, on the last day of the week, Swindover, who had arrived at the castle overnight, sent for Mr. Gudgeon, and interviewed him in the presence of his son-in-law.

"Look here," the millionaire cried angrily, "I'm tired of you chaps. I don't know what your methods are, but they're a darned sight worse than useless. A week has passed—and where's my girl? Murdered, or imprisoned, or heaven knows what, and you're all peering about with your mouths shut because my son-in-law here is afraid of a bit of scandal. Well, I'm sick of it, and I'm going to make the thing public and offer a big reward. I authorise you to do it now, Gudgeon. Let the police know at home and abroad, and all the newspapers. Ten thousand pounds' reward for anyone who brings me news of the present whereabouts of my daughter, the Honourable Mrs. Dangerville. Have that done at once."

Mr. Gudgeon looked aghast.

"It's much too much, sir," he said in respectful protest. "It's never wise to offer a very big reward. They'll tell you that at Scotland Yard—anywhere where they understand these things. A thousand is quite enough—more than that would be unwise."

"Unwise be hanged!" cried Swindover. "I mean to offer that sum. I know what I'm talking about. Offer a thousand, and you leave the thing to chance; offer ten thousand, and you make nearly every man in the kingdom into an amateur detective. I want to find my girl," he added with blustering emphasis, "and I mean to. From the way you chaps talk, one would think you didn't. Perhaps there are some folks who'd just as soon things remained as they are."

And when the police superintendent had taken his

TO IMPROVE THE HANDS.

A good jelly is necessary if the hands are to be kept soft and smooth, and should be applied every night and each time after washing the hands. An excellent preparation may be made from 120 grains of gum tragacanth, twelve ounces of water, one ounce of glycerine, two fluid drachms of tincture of benzoin, two drachms of borax, and two ounces of alcohol. Perfume this as desired. Dissolve the gum tragacanth in water, and then add the other ingredients. The borax may be dissolved in the rose water before adding it. A little lemon juice may be used for removing all discolourations.

The Fiercest Rheumatism

YIELDS TO THE PURIFYING EFFECTS OF DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

"Outdoor life is all very well, but in my case it led to acute rheumatism. Fortunately I was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I don't expect to contract the complaint again." These are the words of Mr. Michael Clark, 33, Deans-row, Livingstone, by Baigate, a prominent member of the St. Andrew Total Abstinence Society, whose career has been disturbed by fierce attacks of rheumatism. "So full was I of rheumatism," he stated, "that for three years I was off work continually. The pain extended from my toes up my side to the shoulder, and was so intense that I was sometimes forced to cry out in agony. I would fall suddenly at times through my leg giving way, and when the rheumatism was not so acute a strange numbness would come into my legs. I grew depressed, lost all desire for food, and my strength began to sink. My whole system was totally deranged."

"While thus suffering and unable to work, Once crippled by Acute rheumatism, cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills,"

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which made a new man of me. I did so on his advice, and within a few days felt better. The acute pains diminished to mere twinges, my spirits were brighter, I was hungry at meal-times, and then all pain vanished. I am as fit as a fiddle now for my work; my blood has been renewed by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Acid condition of the blood is the true cause of rheumatism, and cold or damp excites an attack. The only rational cure is to purify and renew the blood by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which have cured thousands of rheumatism, sciatica, anaemia, indigestion, bile, eczema, and consumption; being a nerve tonic also, they are equally valuable in St. Vitus' dance, neuralgia, paralysis, locomotor ataxy, and ladies' ailments. But substitutes are useless; only the genuine cure—lately Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Of dealers, or direct for 2s. 9d. six boxes, Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Holborn-vinduct, London.

CHALLACOMBE WINS THE ST. LEGER.

Sensational to the End, the Last Classic Race Ends in a Surprise.

CHERRY LASS FAILS.

DONCASTER. Wednesday Night.—A more uninteresting St. Leger than that witnessed to-day would be hard to imagine, and what little enthusiasm remained was dampened by the heavy downpour which fell shortly from their horses' nostrils, and which only elicited from their owners no groans of despair.

The oldest racing-men in fact, would have to ransack his memory to find a race in which the sensational element played a more important part than it did in to-day's big event. The sensations have been numerous, and commented this week, not only in the annals, they were far from faint until they culminated in the defeat of Cherry Lass and the victory of the outsider, Challacombe. Few will regret the passing of the race. It has been the most unsatisfactory of the season.

The opinion that the race was roughly and simply a match between Cherry Lass and Langlby was wide-spread, and our reader who made no secret of the others' names, was right in connection with place investments.

The pair on the book, stood out head and shoulders above the other English competitors, and were two French candidates, good-looking as they were, entirely cold-shouldered. A few seconds here and there went on Nima, with whom M. Cailliaud declared to
